

POSITION TITLE: Post-doctoral Training in Prevention Research
EMPLOYER: Arizona State University, Prevention research Center
LOCATION (City, State): Tempe, AZ
WEBSITE: <http://prc.asu.edu/Jobs>

JOB DESCRIPTION

The ASU Program for Prevention Research anticipates openings in our NIMH-funded post-doctoral training program in prevention science.

Training is delivered through individually-tailored programs of coursework and mentored research experience. Trainees select multiple mentors from a large and interdisciplinary faculty whose work includes interventions with children of divorce, bereaved children, and inner city ethnic minority children and families. Emphases include preventive interventions in natural service delivery settings and quantitative methods in prevention science. Training is for a two-year period.

Interested candidates should send (electronically) a vita, statement of research and training goals, and 3 letters of recommendation to: laurie.chassin@asu.edu. We will review all applications beginning January 15, 2012 and will continue reviewing until the positions are filled.
