A. Awards Criteria

Awards are designed to recognize excellence in the areas consistent with SPR's mission. The specific awards are as follows:

1. The Presidential Award is given to an individual or a team of individuals who have made a major specific contribution to prevention science research. This award is intended to be a "lifetime achievement" award for a significant body of research or theory in any area related to prevention that has had a major impact on the field. The award can be for an entire research program extending over many years or for a single study that changed the field substantially. The awardee(s) may represent the fields of epidemiology, statistical methodologies, research design, or prevention strategies including interventions and policies.

2. The Prevention Science Award is given to an individual or team of individuals for a significant body of research that has applied scientific methods to test one or more preventive interventions or policies. This award recognizes individuals for the work of developing and testing prevention strategies.

3 The Public Service Award is given to an individual or team of individuals in recognition of extensive and effective advocacy (to include dissemination and diffusion) for prevention science and science/research-based programs.

4. The Translational Science Award is given to an individual or a team of individuals in recognition for contributions to the field of prevention science in the area of Type 1 or Type 2 translational research.

5. The Nan Tobler Award for Review of the Prevention Science Literature is given to an individual or a team of individuals for contributions to the summarization or articulation of the empirical evidence relevant to prevention science.

6. Community, Culture, and Prevention Science Award is given to an individual or a team of individuals for contributions to the field of prevention science in the area of community and culture. Recipients of this award are recognized for work to enhance understanding of and the development of, and adaptation of effective prevention strategies for traditionally underserved populations, including racial and ethnic groups.

7. International Collaborative Prevention Research Award is given to an individual or a team of individuals for contributions to the field of prevention science in the area of international collaboration.

8. Service to SPR Award is given to an individual or a team of individuals in recognition of outstanding service to the organization.

9. Friend of ECPN Award is to be presented to a mid-career or senior preventionist who has supported and encouraged early career persons or issues. The recipient of the Friend of ECPN award will have been active in supporting early career activities, either by helping ECPN as an organization; promoting training, funding, or early career involvement in prevention efforts; or encouraging early career preventionists in their work.

10. ECPN Early Career Award is presented to a person early in their career in prevention. This award will be bestowed on someone who has shown a commitment to prevention science through outstanding contributions to research, policy or practice. Please see Section B for nominations process.

11. ECPN Service Award is presented to someone who has shown a commitment to the development and advancement of ECPN. The intention of this award is to recognize contributions above and beyond traditional steering committee responsibilities.

B. SPR Award Nominations Process

The SPR Award nomination materials should be sent together as a packet and should include

- Letter supporting your nomination, briefly (under 1000 words) describe why you are nominating this individual (or group). What important contributions has this person (or group) made to the field of prevention science in relation to the specific award category.
- CV (NIH biosketch or similar)
- Link to the nominee's website (if available).
- Two to three supporting letters of recommendation from others are also appropriate to include.

With the exception of the Public Service which may be given to a non-member, awards are intended for SPR members.

The 2011 Awards Committee, chaired by Nicholas Ialongo (nialongo@jhsph.edu), will make its recommendations to the SPR Board of Directors, which votes on the bestowal of awards.

C. ECPN Award Nominations Process

The award nominations for the ECPN Early Career Award should include

- Nominator’s Supporting Statement which addresses the nominee’s contribution to the field of prevention science as evidenced by their activities in research, policy, service, and/or teaching. The strongest letters will include an indication of the potential long-term significance and impact of candidate’s activities on the field of prevention science.
- An additional Letter of Endorsement which may be less encompassing than the nominator’s letter but should address similar themes.
- Nominee’s Curriculum Vitae

Eligibility:

- Nominee must be an early career scientist, defined as within 10 years post terminal degree.
- Nominee must be a member of the Society for Prevention Research at the time of nomination.

The 2011 ECPN Awards Committee, chaired by Sarah Chilensky (sem268@psu.edu), will make its recommendations to the SPR Board of Directors, which votes on the bestowal of awards.
